Camallonga:

Probe Results

Revealed by DA

(Editors Note: Charges of wrongdoing on the part of Ulster County Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga Jr. have been numerous and continue to provoke interest on the part of many. Specifics of the 11 allegations and subsequent findings of District Attorney Francis J. Vogt are being presented in today's and Wednesday's Daily Freeman.)

(First of two parts)

KINGSTON

By Lynn Mulvaney

Details of allegations of misconduct on the part of Ulster County Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga Jr., including the use of county labor to clean and sort bricks which were ultimately delivered to the site of his new home, will be revealed by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt at an executive session of the county legislature Thursday.

Later that day the county board will act on a proposal that it conduct its own investigation of the highway department.

Vogt recently completed an extensive investigation into the 11 charges leveled at Camallonga by various individuals, most of which he feels are "either false or without foundation and should be disregarded." The others showed "inference of wrongdoing," he said, "even if the investigation failed to disclose any."

In a report sent this week to the 33-members of the legislature,

Vogt said that the use of county labor to clean and sort the salvaged brick was "improper and might be considered official misconduct." The amount of labor cost to the county was reportedly in the neighborhood of $35 to $40. At the time the brick did not belong to the county but belonged to Earl W. Baker, a local contractor.

Highway employees hearings are underway. Story page 3.

The allegations made against Camallonga which Vogt indicated show inference of wrongdoing include:

ALLEGATION—A county fork lift was taken from the highway department yard after hours by an employee, Charles Pollaca, and used in the construction of Camallonga's Elmdorf Heights home.

INVESTIGATION—Pollaca, in a sworn statement advised that on two occasions he had taken the fork lift from the quarry after 4 p.m. to Camallonga's property where it was used in construction. He said it was returned by 7 p.m. and that the county did not own the lift but rented it on an eight-hour day basis. Camallonga, in a sworn statement said he sought and obtained permission from the rental company to use the machinery after hours.

ALLEGATION—Fraud was involved in the acquisition by Camallonga of a certain Army jeep, formerly the property of the Ulster County Highway Department.

INVESTIGATION—Camallonga now owns the jeep which was traded by the department in January 1974 to the Ralph C. Herman Company, Albany. The trade-in allowance was $50 and the jeep was sold to Camallonga for that amount. Investigation shows that in April 1973 the jeep was the subject of extensive repairs performed in the highway department garage including a complete motor job, replacement of clutch and brakes, and the building and installation of a new roll bar and gas tank. About three months prior to the trade-in Camallonga instructed that the jeep be repainted and the canvas replaced. Camallonga, according to Vogt, claimed that when he received the jeep from Herman, it was inoperable and required extensive repairs, including the installation of a new motor, and offered documentary evidence that said repairs were made by and paid for by him.

Vogt, in his report maintains that the present method of disposing of used county equipment is conducive to fraud and recommends that the possibility of selling used county equipment periodically at public auctions be investigated.

ALLEGATIONS—County labor was used to sort and clean bricks salvaged from a house on county property which had been torn down, and that the brick was delivered to the site of Camallonga's house where it was used in the building of a fireplace.

Additional Welfare . . . Opposition Is Growing

KINGSTON

A move to block passage Thursday night of a resolution to borrow money for welfare is apparently gathering support, as Ulster County legislators reflect on such an action last Friday by their Orange County counterparts.

Chairman of the Ulster delegation, Peter J. Savago, today recounted the difficulties inherent in trying to keep up with federally mandated welfare regulations. When asked if he personally would vote against the county's share of an estimated $3.5 million needed to complete fiscal 1975 in the Department of Social Services, Savago paused and said, "Personally, I'm undecided . . . but I could very well vote against it."

He noted that he had been "talking with a couple of other legislators" these past few days who have changed their stances on the proposal to a position against its passage.

Bernhardt S. Kramer, county social services commissioner, commented today, "I have to operate an agency." He said, according to current figures, the money will run out in about four weeks. It was no surprise, he said, as he had made public as far back as April that the eventuality existed.

The refusal of the Orange County Legislature to approve borrowing to sustain the operation of its welfare department would not have personal ramifications for clients until November and, as such, has been called a "grandstand play" by some Orange County legislators.

The possibility exists that if there are no welfare funds, county workers could not legally be paid as state finance law provides a county to pay its bonded indebtedness first, social services second, and employees third.

The Orange County Legislature urged other counties to join in its refusal to pick up the tab for federally and state mandated services without attendant funding.

Monday, the chairman of the Dutchess County Legislature publicly urged his colleagues to refuse to support additional welfare spending until state and federal governments agree to foot the bill.

Said Glenn Houghtaling of Poughkeepsie, "I don't feel we should mortgage our county's future because higher levels of government have come up with grandiose schemes for local communities." Other counties, including Ulster and Sullivan, are reportedly keeping an eye on Orange County developments.

In Ulster, Savago took the issue one step further upon questioning and advocated allowing the federal government to take over all of its mandated programs, not just welfare. He said he didn't think this would be abdicating home rule as "I don't think we have any home rule." And, regarding welfare, "I don't think we have ever won a fair hearing."

Welfare Commissioner Kramer was less ready to cast his lot with the federal government. "I've had other experiences with them," he remarked. His main gripe is the "timing" of budgets, with the county, state, and federal governments all with different fiscal years. This results in great uncertainty when planning a budget as aid monies are unresolved at that time.

Ulster's budget is presently composed of an $18.9 million welfare chunk, or 42 percent of the total. The ratio is changing, however, as about 60 percent of this year's increase was for welfare, and current $937,000 resolution would again increase that percentage.

The county has been adding 100 extra Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) and home relief cases per month over last year's figures, according to Kramer.

'Large Ransom' Demanded for Whisky Heir

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (UPI) — The family of kidnaped 21-year-old whisky heir Samuel Bronfman II has received a letter demanding a "substantial amount" of money. The youth's father says he will pay the ransom.

A spokesman for Edgar Bronfman, chairman of the $1.7-billion Seagram liquor empire, told reporters at the tree-shrouded family estate Monday that a letter mailed to Bronfman from New York demanded an unspecified ransom for the safe return of his son.

The 6-3, moustachioed youth was reported abducted by three men Saturday.

"The FBI and local authorities have been involved, but Mr. Bronfman insists he will comply with the written instructions," the spokesman said.

He said the family is "proceeding on the assumption the communication is bona fide and steps are under way to comply with the ransom demands."

The spokesman said, however, the letter contained "no evidence whatsoever . . . to indicate the author or authors has or had Sam."

"We assume we will receive evidence that will confirm as bona fide the nature of the communication and that Sam is alive," he said.

The spokesman would not disclose the amount of the ransom, saying only it was "a substantial amount."

"Sorry, we don't want to say anything that might endanger Sam."

An FBI spokesman in New York said "the decision (to pay the ransom) . . . was reached by the family and not influenced by the FBI."

Authorities said Bronfman received an hysterical telephone call from his son at about 2 a.m. Saturday saying three men had blindfolded and kidnaped him. Police and the FBI were notified immediately.

Police said the youth's 1973 BMW sedan, keys still in the ignition, was found in the garage at the home he shared with his divorced mother, the former Anne Margaret Loeb, in Purchase, N.Y.

His mother is a granddaughter of John Loeb of Loeb, Rhoades and Co., one of the nation's largest brokerage firms.

Police said the youth had visited his father Friday evening, and left shortly before midnight, mentioning he might stop at a party.

First Family Members 'Still Proud of Mom'

By United Press International

Betty Ford said Monday night she has received support from both the President and their daughter on her controversial statement about any "hypothetical" love affair involving her 18-year-old daughter Susan.

"My husband forgave me and my daughter, Susan, forgave me — so I guess everything is all right," she told a reporter in Vail, Colo., where the Ford's are vacationing.

Mrs. Ford's televised statement that she wouldn't be surprised if Susan had a love affair drew plenty of public comment and much of it appeared favorable. But one telegram to the White House in Washington pleaded:

"For the love of Jerry, be discreet."

"It is all hypothetical," Susan was quoted by a White House official, who added that the young woman is "proud" of her mother's outspokenness.

Mrs. Ford, a strong supporter of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, said in a CBS television interview Sunday night that:

— "I wouldn't be surprised" if daughter Susan told her she was having an affair. "If she wanted to continue, I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject and I'd want to know pretty much about the young man that she was planning to have an affair with."

— The Supreme Court abortion decision was "a great, great decision."

— She assumes her four children have tried marijuana and she might have as a young girl if it had been popular then.

Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, said from Vail, Colo., Monday the First Lady was not retracting her comments about Susan, but that what she really meant was "she would not kick her daughter out" if Susan said she was having an affair.

Mrs. Weidenfeld said Susan is "proud" of her mother and that she would be able to "talk to her" about any personal problems. But Susan also said, according to Mrs. Weidenfeld, "It is all hypothetical" and the question has not come up.

Among the favorable reactions:

— "I wish every girl could have a mother they knew they could be honest with," Susan Bell of Denver said. "Susan Ford is very lucky."

— "I think she spoke like a mother and not like a First Lady," Rabbi Gerry Rosenberg of Beth Shalom Synagogue in Northbrook, Ill., said. "It's an appropriate statement for a mother to make."

— "It is certainly a relief to have a First Lady who is courageous enough to speak out on her own opinions," Susan Jackson, co-director of Dallas' Women for Change Center, said.

"She was not telling Susan to be promiscuous. She was not encouraging promiscuity. She was just being realistic enough to state that affairs among teen-agers are a possibility."

Among the unfavorable reactions in telegrams to the White House:

— Arthur Howatt, chairman of the board of the Christian social concerns of the religious Society of Jesus, or Quakers, said, "We wish to protest against any such statement and to deplore views of that kind as being contrary to the good standards of American society in which chastity outside of marriage is approved."

— "Object to your stand on abortion. Cancel my vote in '76."

— "How can you approve of abortion and promiscuity in one breath and speak of faith and God in the next?"

Suspended Plans for New High School

Nearly $500,000 Spent For Nothing

KINGSTON

When all the bills are paid, it will have cost taxpayers in the Kingston Consolidated School District a little less than $500,000 NOT to build a new high school in Lake Katrine.

But there are two sides to every coin. The Board of Education apparently saved the bill-paying public an estimated $17.2 million when it decided to suspend those controversial construction plans.

The district's three-year search for a site for a new high school has already cost the taxpayers $310,553.63. When the last bill is paid in 1977, the amount will stand at $486,825.63.

The board has been spending money on the futile search since Jan. 12, 1972. But it wasn't until Nov. 9 of that year that the board announced publicly that it was actively searching for a spot to put a new high school.

The first site to receive serious consideration was a 100-acre parcel along Delaware Avenue in the city. Site surveys were undertaken and preliminary plans were drawn, but in October, 1973 the board, bowing to public pressure and a rejection slip from the Kingston Planning Board, announced that it would look elsewhere.

"Elsewhere" turned out to be Lake Katrine. It was on April 4, 1974 that the school board first announced publicly that it intended to build a new 1,500-student high school on 62-acre parcel in the Town of Ulster.

But the district's taxpayers put an abrupt end to those plans. On May 6, voters swept four new members into office who were against the new high school.

Although the board's expenditures date back to 1972, most of the money has been spent since 1974 — and most of that on land acquisition in Lake Katrine.

The school district now owns 34.3 acres of land in Lake Katrine. It paid $15,000 for a 1.3 acre lot owned by Paul and Sarah Mula and some $170,000 as the initial downpayment for a 33-acre parcel owned by Lucia Sabino. The board is obligated to pay two additional equal installments of $88,136 in 1976 and 1977 for the Sabino property.

Consequently, land acquisition costs for the high school site total $363,745.50. That leaves $123,080.13 that the Board of Education has spent for "other" related items and services.

A breakdown of those payments, aside from land acquisition, include: options on properties, $10,200; renewal of options, $6,850; survey and engineering fees, $21,275.27; title insurance and legal fees, $1,759.86; appraisal fees, $875; site planning and topographical work, $12,120 and architect fees, $70,000.

Unless the school board has a change of heart and decides to move ahead once again with plans to build a new high school, it is doubtful that any of those expenditures for services can ever be recovered. The land that the district now owns, however, is another matter.

"I don't consider the money spent on land to be wasted," said Fred Hofbauer, vice-president of the school board. "We can always sell it."

But the question is: who's going to buy that land for the same price the school board paid for it? According to Hofbauer, no one . . . at least not right now.

"At present, I wouldn't try to sell anything," he said, "there's not going to be any major building going on around here for the next two years, and open land especially has gone down in value recently. I think the only way we'll recover our money is to hold onto the land for a few years and sell it when we can get a good price."

Although all future building plans at the Lake Katrine site have been suspended — "there is no way we are going to build it," says school board president Ward Todd — the problems of overcrowding at the existing high school still linger. While the board has not formally adopted an alternate policy, majority sentiment among members apparently favors use of the neighboring MJM Junior High School to accommodate the overflow, following renovation of the old high school.

The school board is apparently prepared to spend some money on that idea, too. A proposal to hire a Poughkeepsie architect to conduct a feasibility study for renovation of the Broadway high school is currently under study by the board's building committee. The latest cost estimate for renovation of the high school is $3.2 million.

Fish Announces Survey Results

WASHINGTON, D.C. Cong. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) announced the results of a questionnaire he sent out last spring, from which he received 20,000 responses on a variety of questions.

A congressional district has a population of just over 500,000 persons but despite the relatively low percentage of returns as compared to overall population — at least half the persons in a given congressional district are under the legal voting age of 18 — Fish says "The responses I receive from my questionnaire help me to perform my duties as a representative . . . since the returns give me an insight as to how the people in the district feel about vital issues today."

Fish said the returns, as compiled Research Services Inc., an independent computer firm, show 80 percent of those responding favor the death penalty when murder is committed in connection with a kidnapping, hijacking or in the commission of a felony. Disagreeing were 16.5 percent while 2.6 percent did not respond to that question.

An overwhelming 92 percent believed the nation should achieve self-sufficiency in energy supply with 4.7 persons saying "no" and 3.4 percent who did not express an opinion.

Seventy-eight percent of those responding approve of drilling off the Atlantic Coast for new sources of oil while 14.9 percent were opposed; 7.1 percent had no opinion.

In other news from Fish's office, the congressman announced that he is sponsoring legislation that repeals the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act in its entirety.

Fish said he has had numerous complaints about the law which went into effect on June 20. It imposes on lenders "vastly increased costs, paperwork burdens and legal sanctions which must be absorbed by the lending institution without pass-through to the consumer," Fish said.

Fish also suggested that the legislation would result in greater legal fees to consumers "in order to insure against malpractice liabilities."

The act also requires disclosure of the previous selling price of the property.

"Congress should repeal this law which is burdensome to the two most important segments of the housing industry, the homebuyer and the lending institution," Fish said.

He also announced that he is against legislation being sponsored by the Food and Drug Administration to bring under its control the supervision of the manufacture and sale of vitamins and minerals.

Fish says that vitamins and minerals are not drugs and should not be classed in the same category. He is in favor of "truthful and informative disclosure to the consumer of all the ingredients in the labeling of vitamin and mineral food supplemental products and for additional protection of the public from false and misleading advertising of these products."

Fish is opposed to legislation that gives the authority to regulate ammunition and firearms sales to the Consumer Products Safety Commission. His bill to exclude ammunition and firearms from control of that agency was recently approved by the house. "My bill will make it clear to the courts and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that the constitutional issue of the right to bear arms will not be dealt with by a bureaucratic, administrative policy," Fish said. Finally, Fish announced he has written the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of defense urging them to promote the use of applesauce in their departments and in their departmental programs. The Mid-Hudson valley is one of the major apple producing areas in the nation.

OCS Budget Revision

By Carl Graham

WOODSTOCK Residents of the Ontario Central School District got a look at the revised 1975-76 budget at an informational meeting in the Woodstock Elementary School Monday night.

The board of education, acting on recommendations from a citizens' advisory committee and school staff committee, has wrung $333,000 from the $7.56 million budget defeated by district voters May 28 and will submit a new one totaling $7.23 million for approval on Aug. 20.

"We have listened to you and this is a budget we feel you can support," said John Mower, board vice president, who served as moderator for the meeting.

Dr. Frank Marlow, superintendent of schools, went over the new budget for the 25 persons in the audience. "About 96.5 percent of the budget is mandated," he said. "The other 3.5 percent that will be presented to you are the items you will vote on."

Major items that have been deleted in the revised budget include:

- Central services ($29,014). Elimination of one maintenance man, equipment, one truck, telephone costs, service contracts, equipment repairs, travel, materials and supplies.

- Teaching ($84,321). No reduction in teaching positions. Savings come from adjusted salaries and building allocations, and district reserves.

- Instructional support ($19,450). Adjusted salaries and building allocations, health examinations and travel.

- Interfund transfers ($34,586). High school roof repair, blacktopping, lock replacement at high school; new oil storage tank, replacement of various maintenance items at Woodstock school and installation of ceiling at Bennett School.

- Planned balance ($130,000). This is money used to operate the schools until the first state aid installment is received in September. The district would be forced to borrow money for this purpose next summer, but Marlow said the tradeoff "would not have a significant effect on the taxpayers."

A look at tax rates in the various towns in the district shows increases in most cases. The notable exception is the recently reassessed Town of Woodstock, where the equalization rate goes from 54 to 135.41, with the estimated tax rate going down from $37.791 per thousand of assessed value to $14.9888. Other towns' new rates and changes from last year are: Olive, $261.5886, up $34.85; Hurley, $139.2233, up $19.18; Shandaken, $64.068, down $1.75; Lexington, $91.5517, up $9.93; and Marlinton, $188.3096, up $18.24.

Marlow said that if the budget is defeated and the district goes on austerity for the year (it has been on austerity since July 1) the net effect would be to remove another $252,000 from the revised budget, including $52,000 for transportation, $30,300 for additional non-instructional personnel, $60,800 for new and replacement equipment, and a $35,500 planned balance.

Mower said after the meeting that there were rumors circulating in the district that the revised budget would return district busing to state-mandated minimums of two miles for elementary and three miles for secondary pupils.

"The revised budget has one-half mile and one mile limits, the same as last year," he said.

Mower said the entire board is supporting the new budget and "We feel we have not impacted the education of our students."

New Saugerties Courses

SAUGERTIES

The Saugerties Board of Education Monday night approved four new classes for the coming school year on a one-year trial basis.

The classes, developed by Director of Curriculum Betty Larsen and a teaching staff committee, include a physical education class for children in kindergarten through sixth grade; a mathematics course for children in kindergarten through eighth grade; "You and the Law," an elective course for high school students; and a class in European studies, a non-Regents course for 10th grade pupils.

The board also approved a contract to rent a kindergarten classroom from St. Mary's Parochial School for the coming year. One section of kindergarten from Cahill School will be taught there due to increased enrollment beyond the Cahill capacity.

The rental will be $200 monthly, same as last year, and Gail Wurzing was named to teach the class.

The district is still seeking two employees for the coming year. Superintendent of Schools Daniel Lee and a committee of staff members have interviewed more than 100 applicants for the high school principal's position, vacated by John Ballard, who resigned to return to Long Island. The second position is for special education at Mt. Marion School, where Mrs. Louise Acoca has resigned because her husband has been transferred to Florida.

Lee told the board that the administration is surveying possible cost of electronic surveillance measures after the Ricciardi Elementary School in Glasco was vandalized July 31. Thieves took $2,800 worth of typewriters, microphones, record players, cameras,

Veto Softened Drug Bill

ALBANY (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey has rejected an attempt to rescind "some of the more drastic" elements of former Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's anti-drug program, but revealed that his counsel is working on legislation that will accomplish the same purpose next year.

The veto of a measure which would have taken much of the severity out of the controversial life sentence anti-drug program was among a number of actions by Carey Monday which related to the state's penal law.

The Democratic governor called the bill "an odd combination of provisions which both lessen and increase plea bargaining restrictions."

The bill, sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson (R-Binghamton) would have rectified "the present anomaly" which singles out so-called A-III felonies as the only class of offenders to whom plea bargaining is denied, even though there is no such prohibition in more serious felony cases.

The aspect of the bill that made Carey "constrained to disapprove" the bill provided for imposition of across the board plea bargaining restrictions in all major non-drug felonies.

Such a drastic change, Carey said, had not been subjected to adequate public hearing and consideration of its implications.

In disapproving the bill, the governor noted that he had directed his own counsel to prepare legislation for consideration in the next legislative session to eliminate "some of the more drastic provisions" of the Rockefeller anti-drug program.

Among amendments to the Penal Law which Carey approved was a bill that will permit judges to hand out sentences to be served concurrently with prison terms for other crimes imposed by federal or out-of-state authorities.

The change was necessary, Carey said, to eliminate the possibility of a defendant being forced to serve a sentence for a New York State offense following a federal prison term or being given a non-jail sentence for the New York crime, thus escaping any imprisonment if the federal conviction was overturned.

Other measures approved by Carey make changes in drug laws relating to methadone. The new law calls for the pure weight of methadone to be used in determining the seriousness of a drug violation, instead of the present use of the gross weight of methadone plus the orange juice or other carrier in which it is dissolved.

The so-called predicate felony provision of the Rockefeller drug laws was amended so that only those crimes committed out-of-state which would have been considered felonies in New York can be used to classify a defendant as a second offender.

A Court of Appeals ruling earlier this year struck down as unconstitutional a section of the 1973 laws which defined as a second offender anyone who had been convicted within 10 years of a crime which carried a possible sentence of one year in prison.

The provision had led to the improbable situation in which someone who had stolen a turkey in Arkansas would have been considered a second offender in New York.

Mayor Beame Has Freeze Power

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame, in a get-tough move to fight the city's financial woes, officially has won the power to freeze wages of municipal workers whose unions have refused to go along voluntarily with his austerity budget.

To the boos and hisses from some union leaders, Beame signed into law Monday an amendment to the administrative code of New York allowing him to impose the one-year freeze, effective Sept. 1. Beame inaugurated his austerity budget because New York City is now in debt about $7 billion and banks are reluctant to lend further money unless the city shows some signs of cutting its spending and improving its ability to repay loans.

Fourteen union officials and workers who were at City Hall denounced the amendment as a sellout to the city's banks.

The amendment also provides that the approximately 175,000 workers whose unions have agreed to a partial or complete deferral of wage increases for a year will have their pensions computed as though their wages had not been frozen. Those whose unions would be subject to a freeze under the powers given the mayor will not have that benefit.

Among the unions that have refused to go along with the freeze are those representing New York's police, firemen and teachers.

Albert Shanker, president of the United Federation of Teachers, said the bill was a "unilateral abrogation of a collective bargaining agreement." He termed Beame's action "very much like the situation in India, where the whole fabric of democracy is threatened."

Morton Bahr, vice president of the Communications Workers of America, said that "at issue is sanctity of contract. Now, we are told that our contracts are so many meaningless pieces of paper that can be abrogated whenever the gods of Wall Street demand new sacrifice.

"Who's calling the shots here?" Bahr asked. "The Mayor? The City Council? Mr. Ellinghaus?"

Highway Hearings Are Underway

KINGSTON Hearings began Monday for two employees of the Ulster County Highway Department who claim they were unfairly suspended by Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga.

The hearings, provided under Civil Service Law, will determine if the two were, in fact, properly suspended.

In papers filed by Camallonga, department employee Thomas Leahy is charged with failure to report to work and insubordination. Clarence H. Bowman is charged with failure to report to work.

A third department employee, Joseph Scully, who is scheduled for a hearing at a later date, was also suspended for allegedly refusing to report to work. He was not involved in Monday's hearing.

The first charge against Leahy alleges that he refused to report to an assignment in Walker Valley on June 12, 13 and 20. The second charge—insubordination—stems from a telephone call Leahy allegedly placed earlier this summer to the "Open Mike" program on radio station WGHQ, during which he reportedly accused Camallonga of using abusive and threatening language.

In papers entered into the proceedings Monday, Leahy denied those accusations. He maintained that his assignment to Walker Valley was a violation of the Civil Service Service Employees Association (CSEA) contract between the county and the highway department workers, and he further alleged that he was subjected to "continuing harassment" by Camallonga.

Leahy also denied that he accused Camallonga of using abusive language during the call to the radio talk show, and he cited his constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech.

In testimony at Monday's hearing, however, Camallonga defended his decision to suspend Leahy and reiterated the charges that were initially leveled against him. He said that Leahy's earlier refusal not to operate a certain piece of equipment because of safety reasons did not contribute to his decision to assign the worker to Walker Valley.

"He (Leahy) was experienced... he was the logical choice," said Camallonga. "I considered the job that had to be done, not the seniority list."

During Camallonga's testimony, County Attorney John J. Lynch pointed out that Leahy's allegations that Camallonga violated provisions of the CSEA contract would more properly be addressed in a union grievance procedure.

Leahy was represented at Monday's hearing by Attorney William C. Mullany. Attorney James H. Fisher served as hearing officer.

The hearing was adjourned Monday night and is expected to resume Wednesday. Bowman's hearing will begin when Leahy's concludes.

Bowman is specifically charged with refusal to report to a work assignment in the Town of Shandaken on May 12 and 13. He told the Freeman at Monday's session that he didn't report for work because of car problems.

Bowman added, however, that his difficulties with Camallonga began when he logged the unauthorized removal of a forklift from the highway department garage on Quarry Street in October, 1974. He has intimated that the equipment was used for non-county purposes.

The three highway department employees were suspended shortly before Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt commenced a probe into alleged irregularities in Camallonga's operation of the highway department. When he announced that he had not uncovered any basis for criminal action against Camallonga, Vogt noted that he interviewed both Bowman and Leahy, but considered them "biased" witnesses.

INVESTIGATION—Baker had the salvage rights under the contract and took whatever brick he wanted and then granted Camallonga permission to take whatever brick was remaining. Vogt said that Camallonga, upon being interviewed said that the brick in question was sorted by county employees on their own time. The district attorney said this was controverted by the employees all of whom signed sworn statements that they spent a minimum of two and a maximum of three days on county time sorting and stacking the brick. The work was done at the direction of their foreman, Tony Bruno. Bruno said he acted on Camallonga's instructions. He estimated the total number of brick sorted and stacked at slightly less than 3,000 some of which were used on catch basins on county roads. He said he delivered the remaining brick on his own time to Camallonga's house, at the superintendent's request.

ALLEGATION—Laborers from the highway department, while being paid by the county, worked on Camallonga's house.

INVESTIGATION—Employees of the department did work on Camallonga's house. All were interviewed and advised in sworn statements that they worked on their own time and were paid by Camallonga by personal check. In a sworn statement, Camallonga confirmed the employee's statements and produced the cancelled checks.

(Tomorrow: Further allegations of misconduct and the subsequent investigation of the charges are detailed).

Naturally Perfect
... Brown Rice

Brown rice is whole grain rice from which only the hull and a small amount of the bran has been removed. Nutlike in flavor and chewy of texture, it needs more water and longer cooking time than white rice. Brown rice is easy to cook—you can boil, steam, oven-cook, or fry it. 1 cup of raw brown rice gives you 3 cups of cooked rice.

To keep most of the B-vitamins in the cooked rice, don't rinse it before or after cooking. Follow package directions carefully and use just enough water.

Don't stir rice after it comes to a boil; this mashes the rice and makes it gummy. Add a tablespoon of oil to cooking water before adding rice to keep the grains of rice separate.

To test the doneness of rice, use the back of a spoon and press cooked rice kernels against the side of pan. When kernels are soft throughout the rice is ready.

India's Press

Freedom is never lost except for what passes for good reason. Indira Gandhi has made it clear how easy it is for a presumably democratic government to justify the destruction of liberty in the name of national security.

Her government issued a code of censorship recently so restrictive that it was forbidden even to publish the code itself.

Most foreign correspondents in India refused to agree to the code and consequently face deportation. But Indian newsmen have nowhere to go to escape the censorship.

Mrs. Gandhi argues that a free press causes unrest and that domestic stability must be protected from the rough and tumble of irresponsible criticism.

But public order purchased at the cost of liberty can be deceiving. It can quickly become very unstable indeed.

Repression deprives the government of the healthy corrective of public debate and discussion. Pressures can build up and finally burst out in a violent upheaval.

The censorship order only increases the danger to Indian democracy.

New Approach

Caspar Weinberger, retiring secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, warns of the proliferation of social programs that threaten to undermine the national economy.

But more than the potential for economic ruin is involved. The temptation of government to engage in "social engineering" in administering duplicative and overlapping welfare programs is a threat to personal freedoms.

President Ford is aware of the waste and inequity in the wide variety of assistance programs adopted over the past 10 years and is expected to make welfare reform an issue in 1976.

And while Mr. Ford speaks wistfully of a return to the old virtues of thrift and self-reliance, the task force he has created to review the system will launch its effort from a platform of reality.

The redistribution of income is a concept that is with us to stay.

So-called "transfer payments," a technical-sounding term to describe the shift of income from one group of individuals to another through the tax system, provide more income for Americans than any source other than wages and salaries.

But poverty apparently persists despite the massive redistribution effort, which encompasses not only cash payments but food stamps, public housing and manpower training.

There is a growing sentiment for adoption of a single cash grant, based on need and income, as advocated by Weinberger.

The Urban League in a recent meeting at Atlanta endorsed the proposal—sometimes called the negative income tax. Under the system, administered through the tax service, individuals whose income was above a set level would pay taxes. Those below the established level would receive "tax grants."

The President's task force reportedly will give serious study to the plan, which if implemented properly could, according to some experts, cut billions of dollars from the federal budget.

The negative income tax is no panacea, but it should make it easier to understand the welfare issue if it becomes the sole source of poverty assistance—if, as Weinberger puts it, Congress "has the nerve to say 'no,' to more social programs."

WASHINGTON—CIA Chief William Colby has complained that the investigations into CIA activities are impairing U.S. intelligence efforts.

This is disputed by our sources on the inside, who insist that the CIA hasn't been seriously hampered in gathering the intelligence that really counts.

Most vital information needed to safeguard the nation is provided by planes, satellites, ships and stations loaded with technological wonders.

Through these magic eyes and ears, the CIA has been able to eavesdrop on conversations inside the Kremlin, photograph Soviet naval movements clearly enough to identify individual sailors and calculate where every factory in Russia is located, what it produces and how much it produces.

The hullabaloo over CIA abuses hasn't stopped the spy satellites from spinning around the earth several times a day and photographing the sights below. Nor has it kept the spy planes from completing their usual missions.

In aerial photographs of Somalia, Africa, for example, analysts first spotted a huge hole on the side of a hill. The aerial shots of Soviet ships in the area also disclosed some peculiar packing crates that the CIA had seen before.

Nations, like individuals, have certain habits, and the Soviet Union had a habit of crating technological gear in special crates. A whole section of the CIA is devoted to what insiders call "crateology."

By examining the photographs of the crates and noting a new excavation site, the CIA concluded that the Soviets were establishing a missile storage base in Somalia.

The Soviets are now fully aware of the techniques that the CIA used to spot their missile storage site. For that matter, the Soviets know far more about CIA operations than do the American people.

The investigations on Capitol Hill may hamper the CIA from abusing its powers but not from collecting intelligence. The CIA never had a license to violate the law. By overstepping its legal and proper bounds, the CIA brought the spotlight upon itself.

It is more important to stop CIA abuses and to restore some decency to U.S. operations than it is to collect every last tidbit of gossip from world capitals.

The United States should never have permitted the CIA to get down on the Communist level and operate the way the KGB does. Ours should be a moral government, with high standards. There should be no need for the CIA to resort to the ugly business of assassinations, blackmail and drug dealing.

STRANGE STORY: American authorities on Guam have called for an investigation of charges that several refugees were dragged last spring to prevent them from returning to their homeland.

The refugees, now awaiting repatriation, insist they were doped and were hauled to Guam under duress. Their strange story sufficiently impressed Noman Sweet, then the top refugee authority on Guam, that he fired off a confidential cable to the State Department requesting a "thorough investigation of the charges."

The cable, which was sent through military channels on July 26, included a detailed statement from 13 refugees. According to their account, they had been caught up in the evacuation from Vietnam but had reconsidered and had asked to be sent home.

Instead, "three American colonels," told them they would have to continue with 2,000 other refugees from Thailand to Guam. When the 13 protested, the colonels allegedly "claimed they would send us to jail . . . We agreed to be sent to jail in Thailand. They stated they would shoot us. We knelt down accepting the execution."

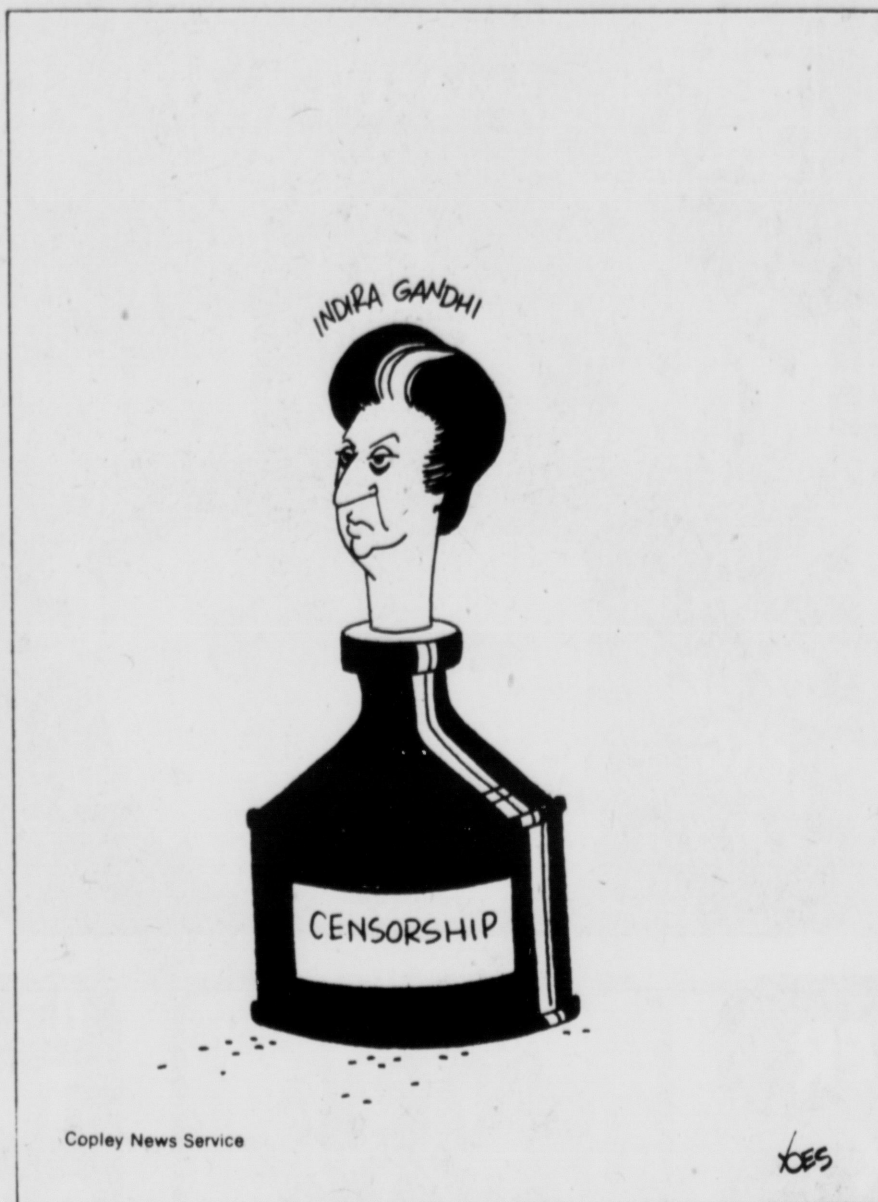

Later that evening, the disaffected refugees charged, the Americans "hand-locked each of us and carried us to a room where we received sleep-inducing injections. . . . After we're awake (the next day) we realized that we were lying on a red-colored ground, full of dust. We're then told that we arrived" in Guam.

They complained that the injections had caused pain and paralysis. So they were taken to a dispensary where, they said, "an American Dr. Captain asked us what kind of sickness. We told him all about the story of our sleep-inducing injections. Unfortunately, he did not believe that."

"He asked us to undress so that he could see the injections. After discovering four injections on each of us, two on the arms and two on the thighs, then he believed the story and understood our situation."

Footnote: A spokeswoman for the refugee program said similar charges had been raised earlier by Vietnamese airmen. It was determined that they were under the control of the Thais at all times. The United States, therefore, had no part in their drugging, if it occurred. The 13 repatriates who have now brought charges, she said, may be some of the original complaints. If so, the previous investigation will stand.

INDIA INK

By William F. Buckley

The decision, reached at Kampala, by the Organization of African Unity, not slavishly to endorse Arab motions in the General Assembly of the United Nations at the forthcoming session is significant and heartening. The Arab-African bloc has spoken over several years with a disarming unity that belied not only the strutting rhetoric of independence with which representatives of these nations traditionally announce themselves, but gains aid whatever little use the United Nations might serve the freshly independent states. To persuade Uganda—for instance—that its interests are identical with those of Saudi Arabia, reminds one very simply of the surviving powers of superstition. For Kenya to vote against an effective anti-terrorist resolution is a venture in self-destruction.

No doubt repeated threats by authoritative American officials to have done with the United Nations if it deprives Israel of its right to speak in the General Assembly brought caution to the big meeting in Kampala. United States support for the United Nations is quite simply critical at every level: financial, diplomatic, and psychological. It is also the one world stage to which the African nabobs can repair to show off their sovereignty in extra-parochial surroundings.

Mr. V. S. Naipaul, an Indian novelist, has given us in a recent issue of The New York Review of Books a sensitive look at the state of Zaire, the old Congo of the Belgian Kings. The principal figure in Zaire is of course General Mobutu. He used to be plain old Sergeant Joseph Mobutu, son of a cook in the local Force Publique. Now he is Mobutu Sese Seko Kuku Ngbendu Wa Za Banga, which means a number of things in the Lingala dialect, none of them unflattering. General Mobutu travelled to New York to give an ardently anti-white speech in the fall of 1973, and managed to make the journey without hardship with the aid of a supporting retinue of 86 persons, including his wife's hairdresser.

All this kind of thing, Mr. Naipaul points out, is not resented in the least by the impoverished people of Zaire.

As Mobutu succeeds in promoting the vision of himself as not merely citizen (he does not disguise his humble origins) but King, and even . . . divinity . . . the people participate in his elevation. There is very little else for them to participate in. General Mobutu, by Mr. Naipaul's account, presides over one of the supremely tattered-demolition states in the world, cursed by the eternal bush, creaky with the rust of junked Belgian hardware, stitched together by a nearly impenetrable tapestry of corruption, boiling under the equatorial sun.

Mr. Naipaul describes a visit by a state commissioner to a nationalized coffee plantation whose workers had not been paid for five months.

"Everywhere the commissioner went he urged the people, for the sake of their own liberty and well-being, to follow the principles of Mobutism to the letter; everywhere he urged vigilance." Mr. Naipaul does not try to improve on the brief description in the capital newspaper of the voyage to one outpost, a mere 20 miles from the principal artery of the Congo, the River Zaire. "At the very entrance to the canal thousands of mosquitoes cover you from head to ankles, compelling you to move about all the time. . . . After a whole night of insomnia on the Lubengo canal, or rather the 'cavalry' of Lubengo, where we had very often to get out in the water and make a superhuman effort to help the paddlers free the pirogue from mud or wood snags, we got to the end of the canal at nine in the morning (we had entered it at 9:30 the previous evening), and so at last we arrived at Bomongo at 12:30 in a state that would have softened the hardest hearts."

These are the workaday problems of much of Africa, and it is appropriate to feel compassion for those who seek to plumb the heart of darkness, and prescribe for it. The Belgian colonialists made scant progress, and ruled with a cruelty Mobutu can, in his excesses, hardly be accused of doing more than imitating. The United Nations and a fawning audience, the kingly palaces, the servants and presidential parks and parades and marching children, are the sponge filled with vinegar, held out to the tortured thirst of generations of humiliation. Africa has unconsciously rejected western ways—the women of Zaire are by law forbidden from imitating western dress. But their dreams are of Mercedes cars and huge factories, devolving to Africa after the decadence of the west finally launches us all into the bush. But clearly the leaders of these countries wish for the United Nations to survive to see it all happen.

Inside Report

Admiral's Lapse of Memory

cized statement which triggered political turbulence in Japan. He said "most people" were not aware that U.S. Naval vessels armed with nuclear weapons regularly visit Japanese ports and that "there is a real danger that we may get an inadvertent use of one of those nuclear weapons."

He then went on to a cozy, intimate account of what he alleged to be just such a near-miss accidental nuclear firing. Describing an incident in which the Terrier anti-aircraft missile was to be fired in a prat practice session from the deck of the cruiser Providence, commanded by LaRocque, the retired admiral testified:

"Lo and behold, we were ready to fire and the machinery clanks and the computers all buzz and whir and up popped a red-tipped missile. Now, a red-tipped missile is a nuclear missile . . . This mechanism was now completely automated and almost out of anybody's control because the radars had locked on the incoming (practice) plane and the computers had all been mashed. We were able, of course, to put the genie back in the bottle (but) it really worried me."

Edward J. Bauser, then committee counsel, at Symington's direction, sent this explosive allegation to the Defense Department for a complete report. What came back was a carefully understated letter form from D.R. Cotter, assistant for atomic energy to Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, which gave the lie to LaRocque's testimony, stem to stern.

"No Navy Department record of such an incident could be located. If such an incident had occurred, the commanding officer (LaRocque) was of course required to submit a report in compliance with existing Navy directives."

That letter was dated Sept. 25. Thereafter, the Defense Department interviewed members of the crew during LaRocque's command from October 1964 to November 1965. Not one could recall an incident even remotely consistent with the admiral's scary testimony. Excerpts from the statements of two crew members who served throughout LaRocque's command, one by the senior chief fire control technician and the other from the missile house chief, sum up the evidence.

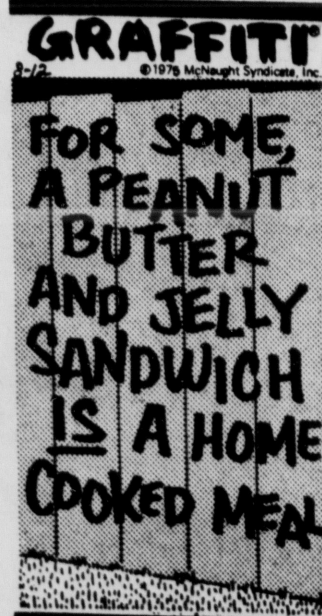

The fire control technician: "An incident such as the one described by (then) Capt. LaRocque never occurred during my time aboard to my knowledge. I can never recall a Y (nuclear) bird on the rail for any reason."

The missile house chief: "Nuclear warheads had no red ball or nose whatever. The warhead was completely white. We did not, during tactical firing operations, operate the feeder system in automatic. The operation would have been in step-manual until it was on the launcher rail."

Moreover, the missile house chief said he believed neither LaRocque nor any commander on the bridge "could see what kind of missile was on the launcher rail," concluding: "I do know that during my tour of duty a nuclear missile was never loaded onto the launcher."

This rebuttal testimony was duly sent to Symington's subcommittee, but was never made public. It was then sent to LaRocque for explanation. A committee official told us LaRocque's reply was "equivocal, not fully responsive."

No wonder. The retired admiral had been caught in at best a monumental lapse of memory; at worst an outrageous fabrication. His Tokyo pronouncements on high global strategy must be viewed in this murky light.

Stauble On Roads

TOWN OF ULSTER — "The Town of Ulster should thoroughly investigate a contractor bidding to work on town roads before granting a contract," according to Allen "Skip" Stauble Jr., Republican candidate for nomination for superintendent of highways in the Town of Ulster.

"First, we should make sure that the bidder is familiar with the Town of Ulster and the various problems that might arise during any road work," Stauble said. "Then, we must look into the firm's reputation and experience."

Noting that the recent laying of a new sewage system has left a number of roads in disrepair, Stauble said: "The residents of the Town of Ulster have suffered enough. Regardless of whose fault it was, these roads should be repaired now. Waiting will not help matters. The Town of Ulster must re-surface and maintain its own roads."

Stauble urged all enrolled Republicans in the town to attend the Republican caucus on Monday, Aug. 18, in Chambers Elementary School, beginning at 8 p.m.

Angler Drowns

TONAWANDA, N.Y. (UPI) — Richard Dobeis, 63, of nearby Amherst drowned in the Niagara River Monday while fishing near the Grand Island Bridge, police said.

Authorities said he jumped into the water to recover a bait bucket which he accidentally dropped and failed to surface. His body was recovered about an hour later.

Kissinger Seeking Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has urged adoption of a worldwide agreement on mining the deep sea before the oceans' resources are exploited.

In a major statement of U. S. policy aimed at the ongoing U.N.-sponsored Law of the Sea Conference, Kissinger told the annual convention of the American Bar Association in Montreal Monday, "We cannot defer our own deep seabed mining for too much longer."

He called for general adoption of a 200-mile offshore economic zone that would extend fishing and mineral rights that far but maintain free international shipping.

The United States, he said, prefers an agreement that would provide a stable legal environment before deep seabed mining actually begins.

"The responsibility of achieving an agreement before actual exploitation begins is shared by all nations," he said.

State Department officials described the speech as a major effort to spur progress and give new momentum to the Law of the Sea Conference.

"We are at a pivotal point in history. The current negotiation may be the world's last chance," Kissinger said. "The breakdown of the current negotiation, a failure to reach a legal consensus, will lead to unrestrained military and commercial rivalry and mounting political turmoil."

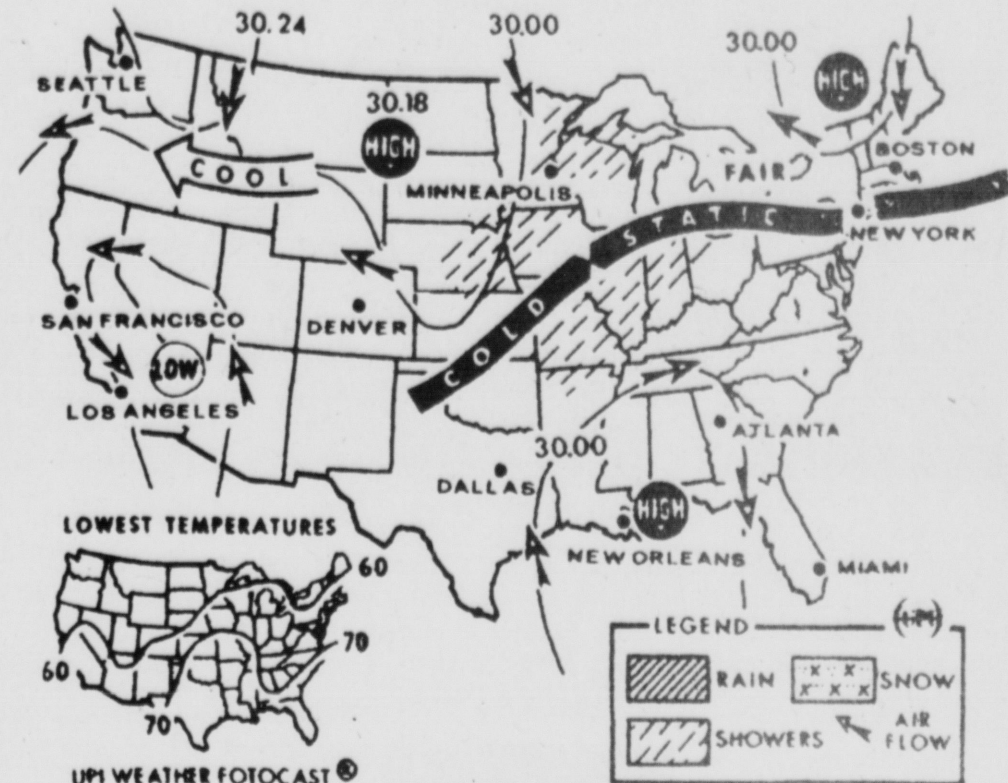

He then presented U. S. proposals as a basis of a new approach to an agreement covering deep seabed mining.

They included:
• An international organization to establish rules for deep seabed mining that would "preserve the right of all countries, and their citizens, directly to exploit deep seabed resources."

• Countries and their enterprises mining deep seabed resources should pay an agreed portion of their revenues to the international organization, to be used for the benefit of developing countries.

• An agreement on a 200-mile offshore economic zone. Kissinger said it would be wrong for the United States to extend its 12-mile fishing zone to 200 miles unilaterally, as the Senate voted last year.

YWCA Honors Paperfolders at Luncheon

On hand for the recent YWCA luncheon were Mrs. Erna Brock, chairperson of the honored paperfolders; Miss Florence Cordts, representing the board of trustees; Miss Marie Ketterer, at the piano, accompanist for musical portion of the program; and Mrs. Barbara Burtnett, president of the YWCA board of directors. (Freeman photo.)

Recycled newspapers, milk cartons and juice cans were the inspirations for the sprightly decorations and favors blooming at the YWCA's recent luncheon honoring its well-known paperfolders.

These volunteers, many of whom have given uncounted hours over the years to this important newspaper recycling job, were feted by the leadership development committee of the YWCA.

Mrs. Edward Wemett, luncheon chairperson, welcomed the guests. Mrs. Barbara Burtnett, president of the YWCA Board of Directors, presented congratulations to the group from the Board, and read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Henry P. Eighmey, chairperson of Special Projects.

Mrs. Dorothy Narel, well-known newspaper and radio veteran, delighted everyone with a surprise vocal selection and lively reminiscences of her days as a local YWCA staff member. Miss Marie Ketterer accompanied Mrs. Narel, and presented a program of piano music throughout the luncheon.

No YWCA function would seem complete without the presence of Miss Florence Cordts. In her remarks of appreciation to the guests, Miss Cordts recalled the days of the founding of the Kingston YWCA over 50 years ago, and the efforts of her mother, Mrs. John Cordts, as well as those of many other prominent Kingstonians, who were instrumental in bringing the wishes of the community into flower.

Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, newly-appointed director of the Ulster County Office for the Aging, and a former member of the YWCA Board of Directors, noted the "Y" 's historical commitment to senior citizens through its Golden Age Club, the first organization of its kind in Ulster County. Mrs. Tennant sketched the background of her agency's formation, touching on the "nuts and bolts" aspects of getting a fledgling agency into operation. She stressed the need for citizens to find out what the Office For the Aging has to offer them, and to inform her to their special needs. Her warm, humorous presentation was enjoyed by all. The luncheon was concluded by the awarding of prizes.

The honored paper-folders include Erna Brock, chairperson; Elsie Burger, Elga Curtis, Christine DuBois, Helen Gill, Agnes Gorman, Olive Kyer, Zadel Hummel, Matilda Martin, Marie Masterson, Sophie O'Connor, Mable Palen, Alma Frommer, Beatrice Powley, Adeline Sprague, Helen Sulko, Bertha Waterman and Ester Wilde.

Moliere's 'Tartuffe' Rewarding For Classical Play Buffs

By Dorothy A. Narel

WEST HURLEY
Moliere, the French playwright and actor whose real name was Jean-Baptiste Poquelin, was considered the greatest comic dramatist of French literature. His work can be divided broadly into farce, comedies and court entertainments and his reputation rests on seven comic masterpieces, one of which was presented at The Hamlet Theatre, located on Route 28-A in West Hurley. In was TARTUFFE, a 17th Century work translated by American poet Richard Wilbur. The production opened Friday, Aug. 1 in the theatre which once housed St. John's R.C. Church.

Prior to TARTUFFE, Moliere had produced his first comic play in 1663 and it came under attack from the religious communities. People thought Moliere's play was an attack on the principle of Christian education. This kind of thinking caused turmoil for Moliere lasting through his entire life.

When TARTUFFE was introduced, his second comic play, it proved to be the most controversial work of all and, according to historians, was performed before the king in a primitive three-act version that has been lost.

TARTUFFE was considered an attack upon religion in those days and it was banned. The play was given privately (akin to going underground) but the ban was lifted five years later by Louis XIV. It proved to be a case where adverse publicity spelled success for then the play was given before SRO houses only.

Hamlet Theatre is not drawing the large audiences that were prevalent in Moliere's days first, because the theatre company is very new and not that well known, and secondly, the type of plays scheduled tend to attract a certain segment of the community. This reviewer would compare it to the appeal of chamber music vs. a full symphony orchestra.

Hamlet Theatre is to be commended for trying to capture and retain the old masterpieces but its general audience pull is limited. It's a shame the house wasn't even half full because the production had quality. The transformation of a church into a theatre is, first of all, interesting to see. Sets for TARTUFFE were artistically done and costuming was excellent.

A cast of 12 gave credence to the author's work although dialogue was often difficult to understand. This must be blamed entirely upon acoustics in the theatre which although excellent, produce a type of "feed-back" or echo-chamber result when the actors raised the volume of their voices.

As for the play, TARTUFFE, it would seem it is unmatched in European literature "... as a sociological study of the corrosive effect, not of religion, but of a decadent religiosity on the life of the community."

The play concerns a well-to-do middle-class family living during the reign of Louis XIV. It consists of a middle-aged husband, his young, second wife, two children from the husband's first marriage, a salty, puritanical mother-in-law, a brother, servant and, the pivotal point of the play, the "hypocrite."

Each character is supposed to represent a different slant on religion and its interpretation.

Nick Samstag, cast as Tartuffe, does well as the hypocrite. He is properly pious when required to be and delivers some of the comedy — 17th Century style. Also in the play are a talented group of actors and actresses: Betty MacDonald, Kristin Sinclair, Carmen, Leone James, James Diecidue, Dolores DiPuccio, Bob Oon, Christopher Humes, Brian Benben, Alan Croce and Lionel Sacks.

Dialogue is in rhyme and the cadence of the lines at times tends to hypnotize.

For many, this touch with classical plays will be rewarding. And prior to curtain time, you can also enjoy an exhibit of unusual art work.

Contributing to the production of TARTUFFE were Rochelle Ellmer, costumes; Mary Munoz, stage manager; Sunny Cresser and Lionel Sacks, carpentry; Richard Arvidson, Marty Monaco and Jason Metz, lights; Karen Brannon, make-up; Carmen, art; Mary Munoz, publicity; Lynn Beattie, props; Elena Croce, Mary Fitzsimmons, Sebastian Metz and Warren Croce, house. The play was directed by Bob Oon.

TARTUFFE will continue on stage on all consecutive Fridays, Saturdays and Sunday evenings with the final performance scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 24.

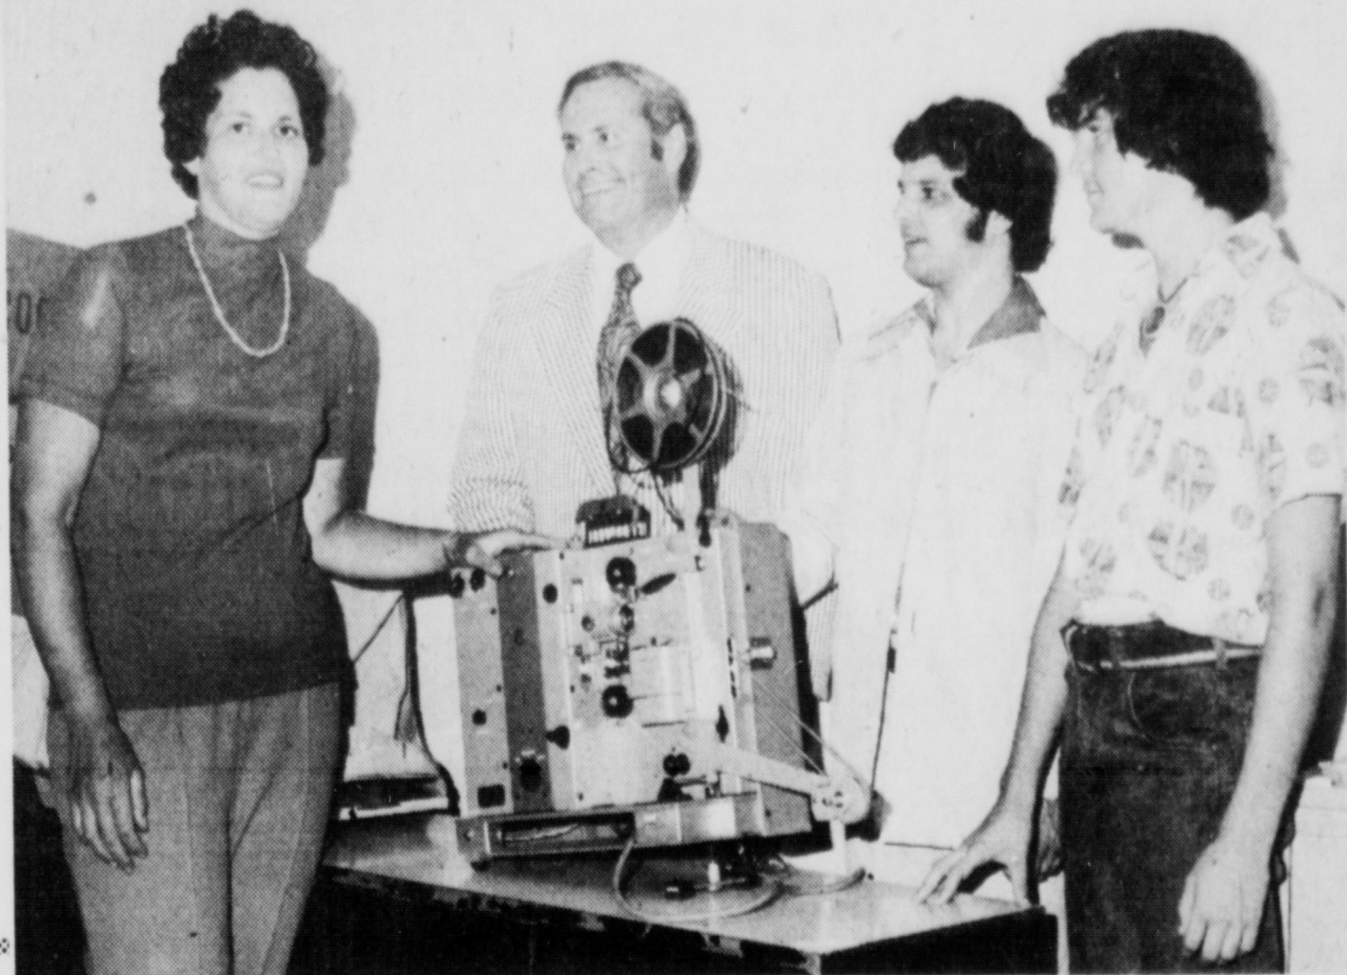

Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

Betty's Live-in Beau An Unwelcome Guest

DEAR ABBY: I am confused and distraught. My daughter and her boyfriend, both in their late 20s, are self-supporting. They both experienced disastrous divorces in their 20s.

When they decided to live together six months ago, my husband and I were very upset since we don't believe couples should live together out of wedlock. We were very fond of Betty's boyfriend until this happened.

We told her how we felt and that we would not set foot in her house under those conditions. We further told her that as our beloved daughter she would always be welcome in our home but never to bring Alan with her.

She replied that she was sorry we felt that way, but she wouldn't think of marrying again without having first lived with the man for at least a year. Our only communication since that time was an anniversary card from her.

Today, I ran into Betty downtown. She brought me lunch, and we chatted like old times. She's happier and more mature now than I've ever seen her. When we parted, she said, "Remember, Mama, our door is always open."

I cried all the way home. It's been a painful separation for all concerned. What do you think we should do?

MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Do what your heart tells you to do. Call Betty and tell her that although the lifestyle she has chosen is not your style, you respect her right as a person to live her own life — and your door is open to her and any of her friends.

DEAR READERS: The following letter was sent to me by a reader. I pass it along without comment:

Dear Customer: We at the _____ company wish to express our deep appreciation to all our customers and friends for your kind expressions of sympathy when we lost our beloved wife and mother. Every kind word, every warm handshake and every helpful act was gratefully appreciated.

Therefore, we are having a special "thank you" sale. Special pricing has been made possible for this event through the cooperation of our distributors.

The first 100 customers will receive $10 worth of food coupons.

Sincerely,
(NAME OF STORE WITHHELD)

DEAR ABBY: My first cousin Randy and I got into a real shouting match last night, and I need you to back me up.

I say that Randy's children are my second cousins and THEIR children are my third cousins.

Randy says I'm wrong. If I'm wrong, what are Randy's children and grandchildren to me? Also, if Randy's children are not my second cousins, who are?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Randy's children are NOT your second cousins. They are your first cousins, once removed. And Randy's grandchildren are your first cousins TWICE removed.

If your grandfather had brothers and sisters, THEIR grandchildren would be your second cousins.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

'What Is a Women's Center?', Topic For Wednesday Evening at WWC

The Woodstock Women's Center will sponsor the second in a continuing series of open rap sessions for women from the local community and surrounding areas this Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Center, 59A Tinker Street, Woodstock. The topic for this week's session, "What Is A Women's Center?" has aroused both interest and debate among members of the local community and among the women who are active in the workings of the Center. It was felt by those who participated in last week's session that the topic should be discussed from a variety of perspectives.

These weekly rap sessions are designed to deal with specific topics on a one-time basis in an atmosphere similar to that of the consciousness-raising group, one of the best known techniques of group discussion to have emerged from the feminist movement. Unlike the c-r group, however, sessions will be open to any woman who wants to participate without having to make a commitment to attend on a weekly basis. In addition to being a forum for discussion, it is hoped that the open rap sessions will provide an avenue for greater community involvement in the workings of the Center and for greater participation in the individual collectives now responsible for operating the Center and planning its programs. Topics for each week will be decided upon by participants at the previous sessions and announced in these pages.

Art Council Increases Award for Graduate

Honoring the memory of internationally-famed area sculptor Roman Adler for the second year, the Ellenville Art Council has announced it will increase to $100 the award now granted annually to the Ellenville Central High School graduate who demonstrates the most artistic promise.

The award, which is underwritten by a token entry fee in Ellenville's upcoming August 23 Art in the Square exhibit, was established at the 1974 show following the death earlier that year of

Mr. Adler. He was instrumental in founding the Ellenville Art Council and the annual exhibit and competition.

Sculptor Adler, working in precious metals, was twice the winner of Best of Show award. His most famous work, Madonna of Nostra Brama, was exhibited at the New York World's Fair with Michaelangelo's Pieta. A replica of Adler's Madonna presently hangs in Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Kerhonkson. The artist himself maintained a studio and summer home in the Kerhonkson area for many years.

The high school art award, according to Art in the Square co-chairperson Dora Kaufman and co-chairman Walter

D. Scott, is not based upon any achievement in a show such as the annual Liberty Square event but upon the talent evaluation of teachers and administrators.

This year's award went to Donna Hasbrouck of the 1975 Ellenville Central High School graduating class.

Angels Run Wild on Yanks

ANAHEIM (UPI) — With the little finger on his right hand still wrapped in a plastic cast so that he couldn't even take off his glove off, Frank Tanana was understandably a bit squeamish out on the mound.

"I was hoping for a lot of runs tonight," said the California Angel left-hander, who was pitching Monday night for the first time since he was hit by a line drive July 28. "Thank goodness we got them."

"I'm glad nobody hit anything back to me. You'll notice I was pitching them inside."

Tanana gave up five hits in the seven innings he pitched to beat the New York 8-1 Monday night, striking out six Yankees along the way to boost his season total to 171—the best in the majors and two more than teammate Nolan Ryan.

"Tanana did a hell of a job not having pitched in two weeks," said Angel Manager Dick Williams. "We were just hoping for five good innings."

But Tanana, now 10-6, had to share the spotlight with the rest of his Angel teammates, who stole a club record six bases—three of them by Mickey Rivers, who leads the majors in steals with 60.

Rivers also got four hits to boost his batting average to .290.

third straight game at home for the first time since early June. Lee Stanton got two RBIs in the game to give him the club lead at 55.

Mike Cuellar, the Baltimore

Orioles' "Cuban Houdini," has more pitches up his sleeve than a magician has handkerchiefs.

"I have to feel sorry for the poor hitters," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver Monday night after Cuellar's neat two-hit 4-0 shutout win over the Kansas City Royals. "They never know what pitch is coming next."

The 38-year-old Cuellar (11-8) varied his basic five-pitch repertoire quite nicely in yielding only a fourth-inning double to John Mayberry and a leadoff single to George Brett in the fifth. But as Weaver pointed out, there's a "Catch 22" to those five pitches. "He throws a fastball, screwball, slider, curve and changeup," continued Weaver, "but he also has three or four different speeds on each of those pitches. That gives him as many as 16 pitches he can throw."

The victory, Cuellar's 35th career shutout, enabled the Orioles to move to within six games of Boston in the AL East pennant chase. And, as the veteran southpaw added, there may be even more confusion for opposing batsmen next year.

"I'm working on a forkball now," said Cuellar. "It should be ready next spring."

A's 4, Red Sox 3

Claudell Washington scored once and then, with his second double, drove home what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning as Oakland increased its AL West lead to 6½ games. Vida Blue (16-8) gained the win but needed help from three relievers after yielding a solo home run to Fred Lynn, his 19th, and a two-run shot by Carlton Fisk—both in the eighth inning.

Rangers 7, Tigers 0

Gaylord Perry hurled a fivehitter as Texas handed Detroit its 16th consecutive defeat and third straight loss by shutout. Perry (12-15) gave up four singles in extending the hapless Tigers' scoreless inning string to 29. Toby Harrah gave the Ranger right-hander all the runs he needed with a two-run homer in the second.

Twins 8, Brewers 7

Eric Soderholm belted a three-run homer and Steve Braun put Minnesota over the top with a two-run shot in a come-from-behind victory over slumping Milwaukee.

Who's on First?

Thurman Munson, playing first base for the first time in his professional career, has a tough play on Angel Mickey Rivers who beats out a bunt for a single. Munson was able to get the glove on the ball and keep it from going into right field. The Angels defeated the Yankees 8-1. (UPI)

Mets' Kranepool Is a Man in a Hurry

NEW YORK (UPI) — In many ways Ed Kranepool and the New York Mets are synonymous.

Kranepool, a 30-year old left-handed hitting first baseman from the Bronx, was drafted by the Mets in their first season of existence back in 1962. His fortunes, like the Mets, have had their ups and downs.

After 13 seasons of unfulfilled potential and disappointments, Kranepool is a man in a hurry. So are the New York Mets.

The Mets, behind Ed Kranepool's three-run homer and two doubles by Joe Torre, defeated the San Diego Padres 8-4 Monday night.

Kranepool, now batting .347 for the season, still believes that the Mets have a chance of catching the front-running Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

"We have to win a lot in a hurry if we will win it this year," Kranepool said.

Speaking of his own accomplishments, Kranepool never had any doubt that he had the ability to excel in the major leagues.

"I always knew I could hit. I always had the confidence and you have to have confidence to do anything," Kranepool explained.

Kranepool's homer, his third of the season, came in the sixth inning off starter and loser Randy Jones, 15-7. The homer followed a walk to Rusty Staub and a double by Torre.

The Mets scored three times in the first inning with Gene Clines' lead-off single starting the rally. Clines was forced at second by Felix Millan, who advanced on a wild throw by Tito Fuentes. Jesus Alou reached on third baseman Ted Kubiak's error, the second of four by the Padres.

A single by Staub scored Millan and Torre's double scored Alou. An infield out by Kranepool drove in Staub for the final run of the inning.

Andy Messersmith thought it was about time he got lucky and the Pittsburgh Pirates would be the first to agree.

Recognized as one of the two or three best starting pitchers in the National League, Messersmith had lost seven of his eight previous games when he took the mound for the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Messersmith didn't pitch as well as he had in several of his recent losses but he nevertheless turned in a four-hitter to give the Dodgers a 7-1 victory. The loss dropped the Phillies three games behind the Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who walloped the Atlanta Braves 8-1.

"It wasn't an easy game," said Messersmith, now 14-11 after being 12-4 at one point of the season. "I had to battle and struggle all the time. Statistics show that I pitched a lot better during my losing streak. Maybe this will turn things around."

"Messersmith has pitched better than he did in this game and lost," commented Manager Walt Alston. "His control was off for him. He ran a lot of deep counts. I can't fault Andy's pitching during the losing streak. He has had good stuff almost everytime he's gone out there."

Messersmith, who struck out seven and walked three, drove in two runs with a bases-filled walk and a sacrifice fly and Willie Crawford hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers, who dealt Larry Christensen his fourth loss. Greg Luzinski hit his 29th homer for the Phils.

The Pirates broke their five-game losing streak as rookie John Candelaria went six innings for his sixth win. Rennie Stennett's daring base-running helped the Pirates score two early runs and they clinched the game with a six-run outburst, with the key hits doubles by Dave Parker and Manny Sanguillen. Darrell Evans homered for the Braves.

Houston defeated St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati walloped Chicago 9-3, and San Francisco topped Montreal 9-2 in other NL games.

Astros 7, Cardinals 2

Jerry DaVanon, drove in three runs with the second homer of his eight-year major league career and Cliff Johnson had four hits to lead Houston over St. Louis. Larry Dierker allowed 10 hits and two walks but went the distance for his 10th victory. John Curtis was the loser.

Reds 9, Cubs 3

George Foster had a double and four singles and Ken Griffey a triple and three singles as Cincinnati pounded out 15 hits to ease Jack Billingham's path to his 13th victory against five losses. Chicago's Rick Reuschel was tagged for 10 hits and five runs in six innings and lost his 13th game.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Chris Speier knocked in three runs with a two-run double in the first inning and a single in the sixth as San Francisco dealt Montreal's Steve Rogers his ninth loss against eight wins. Ed Halicki won his sixth game with Randy Moffitt pitching the eighth and ninth.

For Foolish Pleasure

$4.5 Million Syndication

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI) — Foolish Pleasure, the Kentucky Derby winner and currently the top-ranking 3-year-old colt in the country, is in the process of being syndicated for $4.5 million, but the deal won't be completed before Saturday.

"Send me the money and then I'll believe it, otherwise it's kind of premature," LeRoy Jolley, Foolish Pleasure's trainer, said Monday at Saratoga. Jolley is also managing the arrangements for the syndication.

The What A Pleasure-Fool Me Not, by Tom Fool colt has won 12 of 15 lifetime starts. He was unbeaten as the 2-year-old Horse of the Year in seven starts and this year his only losses were second place finishes in the Preakness and Belmont Stakes and a third place in the Florida Derby.

In his last start, he was matched in a $350,000 race against tragedy-stricken Ruffian, winning uncontested when the previously undefeated filly broke her right foreleg and had to be destroyed.

Perhaps thinking back to that last race, potential investors are waiting until this Saturday's 1¼ mile, $100,000 added Travers Stakes, the oldest 3-year-old stakes race in North America, is completed before making a final decision.

Foolish Pleasure will be entered against a top field of 3-year-olds, which probably will include Wajima, the $600,000 yearling; Canadian champion L'Enjoleur; Western star Foretten, winner of the Jim Dandy Stakes here; Prince Thour Art, who beat him in the Florida Derby; Dwyer Stakes-winning Valid Appeal; Media and Intrepid Hero.

The outcome of the race is likely to figure in the success of the syndication. A win might possibly hike the purchase price; an adverse showing could also affect the transaction.

If the deal goes through, it would be the sixth highest amount ever paid for a syndication. Secretariat tops all figures, $6,080,000 for 37 shares, in 1973. Nijinsky 2d was next at $5,440,000 in 1970, followed by Secretariat's stablemate Riva Ridge in 1973 at $5,120,000.

Bills' Tony Greene Shelved

By UPI

Today is the day nearly 300 National Football League hopefuls get the bad news as clubs trim to the current 60-player limit. But Buffalo Bills Coach Lou Saban got his day early.

Team doctors informed Saban Monday that Tony Greene, the Bills' standout free safety, had suffered a broken collarbone in Saturday night's pre-season loss to Green Bay and will be out of action for at least six weeks. Saban called Greene's loss, "the one injury we couldn't afford."

The Bills surged to a wild card playoff slot in the American Conference East last season and the 5-foot-10, 170-pound Greene, a five-year veteran out of Maryland, was as important to the Buffalo defense as O.J. Simpson was to the offense. He was leading the NFL in interceptions with nine when he suffered a severe leg injury in mid-season and was out the rest of the year.

For the Bills, who are expected to battle AFC rivals Miami, the New York Jets and New England in one of the toughest races in the NFL, Greene's loss could be critical. He will be replaced by Neal Craig, a veteran who played strong safety for Buffalo last season.

The player limit is set at 60 today as clubs trim weekly to a regular season roster of 43 players and several teams announced cuts on Monday.

Washington dropped veteran running back Doug Cunningham, who spent seven years with San Francisco, along with three other NFL vets—guard Carl Johnson, tackle Craig Robinson and defensive end Allen Aldridge—and Dallas dropped quarterback Leo Gasienica and four draft choices—Pete Clark of Colorado State, Willie Hamilton of Arizona, Ed Jones of Rutgers and Greg Krapalek of Oregon.

Morris Stroud, a 6-10 tight end who was with Kansas City for many years, was the lone veteran among Houston's cuts. Los Angeles dropped veteran quarterback Dean Carlson and New Orleans placed two wide receivers, Bob Newland and Dave Davis, on the injured list along with fourth round pick John Starkebaum of Nebraska.

Denver trimmed ninth round pick Russel Williams of Arizona and Minnesota cut Bruce Adams of Kansas, Adolph "Beep Beep" Bellizere of Penn and Henry Greene of Southern University.

In other developments, the New York Jets announced that quarterback Joe Namath will make his first start of the preseason against St. Louis Saturday night. Namath played nearly two quarters and set up the winning score in a 20-15 victory over Minnesota last week.

The World Football League Birmingham Vulcans are without a quarterback. Starter Matthew Reed suffered a shoulder injury two weeks ago and his replacement, Denny Duron, wrecked a knee last week. Reed was forced to wind up a victory over Philadelphia despite the sore shoulder.

Gaters Down Sets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The Western Division champion Golden Gaters defeated New York, 27-22, Monday to deal the Sets' division title hopes a serious blow.

The Sets fell 1½-game behind the Pittsburgh Triangles and now must win their remaining three matches, including one against Pittsburgh.

Frew McMillan and Betty Stove ice the Gaters' victory by beating Fred Stolle and Virginia Wade, 6-2, in mixed doubles.

Bad Fall Injures Youth

By Matt Spireng

WEST SAUGERTIES
A Saugerties teenager was seriously injured Monday night when he plunged an estimated 50 to 70 feet off a cliff near his West Saugerties home.

Ambulance personnel said it took about a half an hour to reach Timothy O'Connell, 14, of West Saugerties and bring him back up from the stream bed in which he landed.

Saugerties Town Police said the mishap occurred at about 10 p.m. at Pond Falls, a popular swimming area for youngsters.

Suffering from multiple injuries, the youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Connell, was rushed to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance and was then transferred Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was listed in fair condition today in the intensive care unit.

An explanation of what he was doing at the time he fell was not immediately available.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters: A 19-year-old Saugerties youth was seriously injured Monday night in a bicycle-car collision on Route 9W in Lake Katrine.

The youth, identified by state police as James Slater of Potter Hill Road, Saugerties, and by the hospital and ambulance personnel as John Slater, was taken to the Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance suffering from leg and head injuries. He was listed in poor condition today in the intensive care unit at the hospital.

Slater was ticketed for operating at night with improper lighting equipment on his bicycle. The driver of the car, Roger Krantz, 28, of Kingston, was not ticketed.

In Hurley, the search for 70-year-old Harvey Frederickson of Ulster Trailer Park—missing for more than a week—continued to wind down today. State police said bloodhounds failed to turn up anything new on Monday in the heavily wooded area off Dug Hill Road where Frederickson's car, containing what has been described as a suicide note by sheriff's deputies, was found abandoned on Monday, Aug. 4.

A house-to-house canvas of area residents also failed to turn up anything new in the case, troopers said. Patrols remain in the area and the state police helicopter was expected to be brought in again today.

Aide Enters Guilty Plea

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former key aide to indicted nursing home owner Bernard Bergman has pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge and is expected to become a prosecution witness against his ex-employer.

Mark Loren, 39, administrator of the Towers Nursing Home from 1970 to 1973, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Monday to a charge of filing false documents concealing financial interests in the home.

Loren was permitted to waive indictment and plead guilty to the "criminal information" count in return for his cooperation with federal authorities investigating alleged Medicaid fraud by Bergman homes.

Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. deferred sentencing on the charge against Loren, which carries maximum penalties of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Bergman, 63, and his son Stanley Bergman, 32, were indicted last week by federal and state grand juries in the alleged theft of $1.2 million in Medicaid reimbursement funds through the Towers and Park Crescent nursing homes.

The Bergmans and their accountant, Samuel A. Dachowitz, pleaded innocent last Tuesday to the state charges, which included grand larceny.

The Bergmans are scheduled to be arraigned Aug. 18 on the federal charges, which include income tax fraud. Dachowitz was not named in the federal indictment.

Loren, a resident of New Rochelle, admitted to filing false documents with the state and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in which he failed to name 11 undisclosed partners—including himself—in the Towers home.

Progress Reported On Peace in Mideast

By UPI

Israel and Egypt are making substantial progress toward an interim Middle East peace agreement, reports in Tel Aviv, Cairo and Washington indicated today.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo said the latest negotiations have enhanced prospects of a new military disengagement agreement in the Sinai Desert.

The sources said the United States is trying to set a date for the resumption of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy to finalize a new pact.

In Montreal, Kissinger said a decision on renewing his shuttle efforts to bring about a Middle East peace settlement would be made within 10 days.

"The chances for a shuttle are better now than they have been," he told a news conference after talks with Montreal's mayor.

Kissinger's last Middle East mission collapsed in March when 15 days of shuttling between Egypt and Israel failed to secure an agreement.

The talks broke down because of disagreement on the extent of an Israeli withdrawal from the Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields.

Two senior officials representing Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin are in Washington for talks with Under Secretary of State Joseph Sisco.

The State Department said Monday the two aides, Mordechai Gazit and Meir Rosen, would discuss "certain points related to a new interim agreement between Israel and Egypt."

Sources in Tel Aviv said Gazit and Rosen are trying to draft the technical language of a new disengagement agreement, outlining Egyptian political concessions in exchange for Israeli territorial withdrawals.

The optimistic disclosures followed a diplomatic exchange Monday in Cairo between U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts and President Anwar Sadat.

Eilts gave Sadat Israel's latest terms for an interim accord. After several hours of talks, Sadat gave him Egypt's response on the spot and Eilts relayed it to Washington.

"There has been satisfactory progress," a well-placed diplomatic source said in Cairo following the meeting.

Adderley Funeral

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—To Julian "Cannonball" Adderley's musicians and friends, the saxophonist's greatest trait was his unselfishness.

"Julian was beautiful, he was a free spirit," singer Nancy Wilson said after Adderley's burial Monday. "I just loved him and felt like one of his family."

Chicago civil rights leader Rev. Jesse Jackson described Adderley in a eulogy as "the resident philosopher of jazz." "Cannon used his saxophone as an instrument of peace," said Jackson, who first met Adderley 10 years ago at a civil rights rally. "He never forgot he grew up poor and black in a white man's world and used his music to interpret the ideas of the time."

Ms. Wilson sang to 1,800 people attending Adderley's funeral at Florida A&M University, where the musician graduated at age 18. University officials played Adderley's music before and after the service.

Adderley, 46, died last week in Gary, Ind., following a stroke July 13. Among numerous other musicians, Adderley helped Ms. Wilson start in the jazz world.

Mike Wolff, a 23-year-old pianist in the "Cannonball Adderley Quintet," said Adderley helped him get his start in jazz. Wolff, one of the few whites attending the service and burial, said he met Adderley at a concert on the University of California's Berkeley campus and joined his group last January.

Wolff and several other out-of-town musicians played in a tribute Sunday night to Adderley in a small bar that features jazz near Florida State University.

NEW PALTZ
Voters in the New Paltz Central School District will be casting ballots today on nine propositions which would provide, if passed, money for such items as transportation, interscholastic athletics and pupil supplies beyond that provided in a recently adopted austerity budget. Voting will take place from 2 to 9 p.m. in the Middle School auditorium.

Car Sales Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Retail sales jumped two percent during July, the sharpest one month sales increase in a year, the Commerce Department reported.

The department said sales of new and used cars and auto parts contributed to the advance.

The 2 percent increase in total sales in July was the highest since a 4 percent gain in July, 1974. The July increase was about double that of recent months.

The Commerce Department reported a 7.2 percent jump in sales of new and used cars and auto parts, apparently reflecting rebates offered to new car buyers and cuts in used car prices.

Your Astrograph

For Wednesday, Aug. 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a tendency to be wasteful with funds entrusted to you today, because you don't investigate closely before investing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Those at home will be extra-sensitive today. Take care you're not the one to cause hurt feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

It's not a good work day for you. Your mind is not on what you're doing. Your mistakes will have to be corrected tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Don't give in to the kids too easily today. Not only will it cost you money, it will restrict your personal freedom.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Feelings are intense at home today. It's easier to give in on minor points to avoid locking horns with someone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

You could be moody today because you won't speak out on something bothering you. Try not to hold things in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Don't let friends demand too much of your time today. It'll end up costing you more than you intended to spend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Keep your head at all costs. Your dignity and reputation could suffer greatly if you lose your cool around the wrong people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's best to have well-thought-out plans today, or you'll find yourself trying to escape from doing things you'd rather not.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Follow your instincts to be a loner today. Being around crowds will only wear your nerves to a frazzle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

You won't dignify yourself by being stubborn. Failing to see the other person's point of view could be your downfall today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Trying to spread yourself too thin today in your work will only result in a lot of aggravation.

Your Birthday

August 13, 1975

Many changes will result in a revision of your thinking this year. Members of the family will be instrumental in the new growth you'll enjoy.

Win At Bridge

Gather Ye Honors While Ye May

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If the bidding of today's hand looks funny, don't blame us. Victor Mollo wanted South to be in a four-heart contract and this shows how he might get there.

Victor asks, "After ruffing the spade lead what cards should be played to the next three tricks?"

The answer is: "Ace of diamonds, King of diamonds, Ace of Clubs."

If South can score seven tricks in trumps plus two diamonds, and one club, he makes his contract. In other words, a cross ruff is indicated.

It is easy to see why he cashes dummy's ace and king of diamonds to prepare the cross ruff. It is a trifle harder to see why the ace of clubs is taken next. However, look what happens if South doesn't cash that ace of clubs.

When South ruffs a diamond, East discards one club; when he ruffs the last diamond East discards his last club. South makes seven trumps and two diamonds, but the ace of clubs has been made into a loser.

Anti-Red Riots Continue in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Thousands of stone-throwing demonstrators broke through a cordon of rifle-firing troops today and sacked Communist headquarters in the northern town of Viseu.

The crowd of about 4,000 smashed windows, ripped out plumbing, tossed office equipment onto the street and burned broken furniture in bonfires in front of the building. "In every practical sense they destroyed the place," a Fire Department official said. "They even brought the bathtub out."

A police spokesman said Communists inside the headquarters fired pistols and threw gasoline bombs into the crowd. Police said one person was killed and 15 injured in the melee. A Misericordia Hospital spokesman said four of the wounded were in critical condition.

The injured included Police Commander Adriano Sanches, who was hit in the head by a rock as troops fired shots into the air in an attempt to break up the crowd.

It was the latest in a series of attacks against Communist headquarters in the conservative north. Some fifty Communist centers have now been sacked in recent weeks.

On Monday, a crowd shouting "Communists must die" set fire to the Communist headquarters in the town of Braga, climaxing a day of rioting that left 50 persons injured. Marines used smoke grenades to rescue 20 trapped Communists.

On Monday night, anti-Communist mobs sacked Communist headquarters in Tondela, 24 miles southwest of Viseu. This morning, a mob broke into the Villa Verde headquarters of the Portuguese Democratic Movement, a Communist ally.

In Fafe, police appealed for military reinforcements in anticipation of violence at the funeral today of a 49-year-old man killed by Communists last Wednesday when crowds attacked their headquarters in that northern town.

Jose Magalhaes, who had returned to Fafe on vacation from his job in West Germany, was among two men killed and four wounded in the incident.

A police spokesman said it was feared the town's residents would make a new attempt to sack the Communist-occupied headquarters after the funeral.

The growing violence reflected increasing opposition to the left-wing policies of Portugal's Communist-backed military rulers.

Nine moderate officers suspended from the military's Revolutionary Council have been campaigning in barracks across the country against the regime of Premier Vasco Gonçalves.

The group, led by Maj. Melo Antunes, reported getting the signatures of 1,000 officers on a document rejecting the regime's call for a Communist-style "people's democracy."

In Viseu, a crowd of 30,000 gathered Monday night in the town's sports pavilion for a rally called by the Socialist, Popular Democratic and Democratic Center parties.

At the end of the rally, thousands of demonstrators gathered in front of the Communist headquarters and thousands of others marched on the local military base in an apparent attempt to get support for the Antunes document.

Authorities said the protesters began to stone the headquarters and Communists inside the building responded with gunfire. Troops finally evacuated the besieged Communists.

The soldiers then fired shots above the heads of the demonstrators in an attempt to break up the crowd but the angry protestors smashed through the military cordon and stormed into the building.

U.S. Vetoes Vietnams

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — North and South Vietnam say they're willing to establish diplomatic relations with the United States even though America blocked their admission to the United Nations.

The North and South Vietnamese observers at the United Nations issued a joint statement Monday night saying they "are not hostile" to the United States and "are willing to establish normal relations."

The statement came soon after the United States cast twin vetoes in the Security Council to bar the admission of the two Communist countries to the world organization.

It was the first time the United States used its veto power to block an application for membership in the United Nations.

The 15-member council voted 13-1 in favor of admission with Costa Rica abstaining and the United States casting vetoes on both ballots.

Daniel Moynihan, the new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said the United States vetoed the applications because the council had refused to consider South Korea's bid for membership last week.

"We must not apply partisan political tests to U.N. membership," Moynihan said. "The United Nations cannot work if we do."

He said the United States blocked the membership of North and South Vietnam because their "sponsors have refused to act equitably toward the application of another nation."

Representatives Dinh Ba Thi of South Vietnam and Nguyen Van Luu of North Vietnam issued a statement after the vote, accusing the United States of causing "suffering, mourning, misery and destruction" in their countries.

"But the Vietnamese people are for peace, freedom and justice," the statement said. "They, therefore, are not hostile to the U.S. government."

The two diplomats said their countries are ready "to resolve with the U.S. government all remaining questions" and "to create favorable conditions for the development of friendly relations."

President Ford said last week the United States would only agree to U.N. membership for the two Vietnams if South Korea were admitted at the same time.

Some of America's allies, including Italy, Britain, France and Japan, supported Ford's proposal but still voted for admission of Hanoi and Saigon.

The vetoes were the eighth and ninth cast by the United States. The Soviet Union has used its veto power 110 times, Britain 11, France 6 and China 2. Taiwan cast one veto when it held the Chinese seat.

North Vietnam, South Vietnam and South Korea have observer missions at the United Nations, participating in debates without the right to vote.

Explaining His Move

U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Daniel P. Moynihan, explains his veto of membership applications by North and South Vietnam following voting in Security Council at the UN in New York City on Monday. He told council last week that the United States would uphold the United Nations' universality principle, but would not stand for the exclusion of South Korea from the world organization. Voting on the measure were 13-1, with Costa Rica abstaining from both ballots. (UPI)

Viking Launch Thursday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space agency officials have rescheduled for Thursday an attempt to launch an unmanned Viking spacecraft on an 11-month voyage to look for signs of life on Mars.

The Viking launch was postponed Monday after officials discovered a valve in the first stage of the Titan-Centaur rocket was stuck open. The discovery was made during a test less than two hours before the scheduled liftoff.

"We got a 'no go' signal that the valve did not respond properly," said Air Force Maj. Wesley West, chief of operations for the launch. "If we flew with the valve in that position (open) it would simply drain fuel out of the tank."

After deciding to replace the defective valve, officials announced liftoff was rescheduled for 5:08 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The delay is not expected to interfere with plans to have a lander break away from the orbiting spacecraft and touch down on Mars on July 4, 1976, as part of the nation's bicentennial celebration.

In fact, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said, because of movement of the planets the Viking will arrive in orbit June 15, a day earlier than originally planned.

Another Viking launch is set for Aug. 21 from the same pad. That spacecraft will also be bound for Mars, 230 million miles away, to assist in studying soil samples and other data for evidence of life.

Both Vikings are equipped with the most sophisticated automated and sensing devices "man is capable of constructing," said Robert Kraemer, NASA's director of planetary programs.

The Viking mission has been seven years in the making. Total cost of the project is $1 billion.

Catholic youths who had earlier taken part in demonstration outside Communist headquarters, burn Communist flag outside the building in Braga, Portugal Monday. Army troops firing guns and teargas from armored cars waded through a crowd to break up the violent demonstration. Police said 26 persons were wounded during the night before calm was restored. Ford Weighing Oil Appeal

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford was awaiting final recommendation of his advisers today on whether to appeal to the Supreme Court Monday's U.S. Court of Appeals ruling the $2 tariff he imposed on imported oil was illegal.

Ford planned to announce his decision within hours after the appeals court handed down the decision in Washington. But he delayed to await a complete analysis of the ruling from his legal advisers.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford already has received the preliminary views of his advisers but indicated the President must weigh the future impact of his energy program.

The court decision was delivered at a time when Ford himself was strongly considering removing the $2 import fees to soften the impact on gasoline prices when he vetoes an extension of price ceilings on domestic oil. They expire Aug. 31.

Ford says there is a "99 and nine-tenths percent chance" he will veto legislation to extend the controls for six months.

A White House aide said Ford was faced with a dilemma: if he removes the tariff while at the same time appealing the opinion, the Supreme Court might decide the question is moot.

But the aide said Ford may feel it necessary to appeal to assert his authority to impose such tariffs.

Nessen said Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb has told Ford that if controls are eliminated and the import tariffs are removed, the President will have accomplished two-thirds of his goal of saving 2 million barrels of oil a day by 1977.

Meanwhile, some Democrats say the court order on oil imports should lower consumer prices for gasoline and heating fuel.

Administration spokesmen declined comment on the impact until the Federal Energy Administration can review Monday's decision of the U.S. Appeals Court.

But Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said gasoline prices should drop to about 52 cents a gallon and heating prices to last January's levels.

It is "a major victory for the American consumer," said Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

The suit was brought against FEA by the governors of eight Northeastern states. The appellate court upset a U.S. District Court decision that favored Ford.

The appellate court said Ford had the power to limit oil imports but could not impose a fee to reduce imports by raising prices.

"We recognize that we are overturning an honest attempt by the President to find a solution to a difficult crisis," the court said in a 2-1 decision.

But it said the President was "without substantive authority to impose license fees of the magnitude at issue here."

The FEA estimated the $2 fee on each barrel of imported oil increased gasoline prices about 3 cents a gallon to consumers. The levy, called a "licensing fee," was designed to go as high as $3 a barrel, but Ford delayed the final $1 in an attempt to compromise with Congress on energy conservation.

The first dollar imposed on imports in February led to price increases for home heating fuel, especially in the Northeast, and later to gasoline. But it had the President's intended effect by slashing oil imports 46 percent below January.

The second $1 fee in May contributed to gasoline price rises over the July 4 holiday.

Hoffa's Son Claims There Is Witness

DETROIT (UPI) — The son of former Teamsters President James Hoffa says the FBI has interviewed a man who claims to have witnessed his father's abduction.

"Authorities have interviewed extensively an individual who claims he was an eyewitness to the abduction at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant," James P. Hoffa told newsmen Monday at the family's Lake Orion home.

"He has given us substantial leads which have been followed up carefully."

Hoffa's statement contradicted remarks by FBI officials that no promising leads have turned up in the 12-day-old investigation and that authorities do not know whether Hoffa's disappearance July 30 "was voluntary or otherwise."

An FBI spokesman said, "We have no knowledge of a witness to the abduction of Mr. Hoffa."

Hoffa refused to answer newsmen's questions about the alleged mysterious witness. He said he taped an appeal for help in the investigation for broadcast by Los Angeles television station KTLV "because we feel there is evidence to be made available in that area."

"We think we are going to have a successful solution to this crime," Hoffa said.

But Special Agent Jay Bailey of the FBI's Detroit office said investigators had no information to show whether Hoffa is alive or dead and have no suspect, no motives and no evidence of an abduction.

Although Bailey said he is not pessimistic about chances for Hoffa's safe return, he added that "with the passage of time the apprehension does grow."

U.S. Attorney Ralph Guy

ordered a federal grand jury investigation of Hoffa's disappearance and said he would begin issuing subpoenas to "uncooperative witnesses" this week.

Guy refused to say who might be called to testify but said there were several witnesses who "have not fully cooperated with investigators."

Reputed Detroit Mafia kingpin Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, who allegedly failed to show up for a meeting with Hoffa and two other men the day Hoffa disappeared, reportedly refused to talk to FBI agents and said he would have to be subpoenaed first.

Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, an alleged East Coast Mafia leader, and Detroit labor consultant Leonard Schultz — who also were reported to be in on the luncheon meeting with Hoffa — also were expected to be subpoenaed.
